THE Patriotic Fund in Alderson will be a success if the present contributions are a criterion of what is to be. At time of writing the leading citizens of town, gave the fund a good start. The editor threw in his first mite this week. Along with other citizens whose views meet our views we intend to keep on giving as long as we are able. The editor of the Grassy Lake Gazette told last week that a man named Simpson in that district had come from Spokane last Spring and taken 15,000 bushels of fl. refused to give. When asked to contribute to the Patriotic Fund, he refused to give. Some Piker. It will certainly help recruiting. Think it over, Calgary has set a wonderful example to other towns. In a whirlwind campaign they have contributed $90,000 and the Fund is still growing. Get your name on the list. Do what you can.

Suffield

The Harvest Festival Services in the Church of England Suffield were well attended and much enjoyed. The Festival was commenced on Thursday night and it was feared the Church would not accommodate all who wished to attend so the Village Hall was engaged for the evening. For decorating purposes grain, fruit and vegetables were kindly contributed by the Canadian Wheatlands and Suffield Trading Co. The result was beautiful.

The Sermon was preached by the Rev. M. A. Harding Vicar of the Holy Trinity Church Medicine Hat, and his powerful words were an inspiration to all present. The festival was brought to a conclusion on Sunday with a celebration of the Holy Eucharist in the Church which was also decorated for the occasion. The congregation at the service united in offering up thanks giving to the Lord of the Harvest the greatest and highest act of Christian praise and thankfulness.

RUSSIA'S LESSON AS A RESULT OF WAR

A Huge Nation Without Industries— How Would Canada Fare Under Similar Conditions?

"Countrylife in Canada" of Winnipeg had a very interesting article in a recent issue entitled, "Nations, With and Without Industries." Russia was taken as a typical example of the nation without manufacturing development. The article calls attention to Russia's position when war was declared. Russia found herself cut off from the rest of Europe and America in great measure as far as supplies of manufactured goods were concerned. Russia could no longer get her stores of food products, nor secure in change for her manufactured goods, many of which were essential to the successful conduct of the war.

Result of Russia's Isolation
Food remained cheap, but imported raw materials and commodities became dear. The importation of manufactured goods ceased and the export of raw materials and agricultural products became dear. Imported commodities became dearer and dearer. Germany before the war exported to Russia immense quantities of machinery, utensils, and chemically prepared materials. Nearly all drugs and special materials came from Germany, and existed in Russia. Breads made in Vienna, and hats and costumes from Paris disappeared. Russian society was poorer than before the war. The middle and upper classes of Europe—have been, and will be, without cash. In this regard the upper and middle classes of Russia feel the pinch of war, because luxuries are dearer. The poor, however, are not only a demand for food, and food is dearer, but they are also a demand for both plentiful and cheap. The peasant farmer was better off, especially since he no longer could waste what money he had on vodka and beer. Economically, the sobriety conserve wealth of the nation.

Russian General's Views

A Russian general stood with his staff on a hill in Poland. The Russians were fighting one of their dogged rearward actions, falling back on a line of new defences. Impotently the soldier raised his hand and shook it at the advancing German horde. "Oh, for the machine shops of other lands," cried he, "for their looms and factories. Then we'd fire shell for shell, and our soldiers would have an equipment to face the best in the world!"

If Canada Were Embattled
What if Canada had enemies on her southern frontier, and part of the prairie provinces in their hands. To the north, the un navigable Arctic; to the west the Pacific Coast blockade by enemy warships. Halifax being bombarded, enemy troops over-running Nova Scotia, and warships smashing their way up the St. Lawrence. It is not a pretty picture, and but for the grace of God and the British Empire, we might be to-day a Russia Is.

Could Canada take care of herself in an economic sense? We know that Russia has cheaper food as a result of the war, but even now Canada imports eggs, butter and other products that now glut the home market in Russia. What would it avail us if our wheat was held in storage as Russia's in her Black Sea ports?

Yet, in other ways, Canada is infinitely better prepared as a self-sufficient exporting country than is Russia. Its ratio to population our factory production swamps that of Russia. We even produce the luxuries the upper classes of Russia lack owing to the

Our manufacture boots, and our ladies are quite well satisfied with Canadian-made clothing. We have the machine shops—the looms—that the Russian government longed for. We have, in fact, everything along the road that proves a nation to be industrially organized. Economically we have as great resources as any nation in the world, unless—if only we conserve them. Our population is a feeble one to that of Russia, but Russia never suffered from a lack of population. Her cultivated area has decreased, and the passing of the serf system and emigration; her farmers did not leave the land to become real estate or to go to the cities. In Canada, Russia has unequalled natural resources to-day—but no industries in ratio to her population. There is no doubt in all this. Building up Home Industries. Fortunately Canada has endeavored to do so.

PROTECTION IN AUSTRALIA

Grain Growers' Secretary Exchanges
Notes With Australian Organizer

A recent issue of the "Grassroots Farmers' Guide" contained an interesting letter from the General Secretary of the Farmers and Settlers' Association of New South Wales. Apparently co-operative organizations in Australia are making big strides in the Australian continent. After reviewing the co-operative features of the farmers' organizations, particularly with respect to the co-operative production of wool, the writer has a paragraph bearing on the much vexed tariff question. Judging from the Secretary's views on this subject, the co-operative movement in Australia is making the farmers nearly as much as in Australia as it has in the Canadian West during recent years. While the organized farmers in Australia are somewhat more numerous than in the United States, opposition is by no means shared by the majority of the agricultural producers, as is evident from the following extract from the Secretary's letter:

"As regards the feeling among Australian producers the position is decidedly 'mixed,' and it will probably surprise you to learn that the majority support the Protectionist policy."

Organized effort has resulted in the creation of a certain amount of hostility towards the policy of a reasonable encouragement for Canadian manufacturing industries in this country, but it is doubtful whether the majority of the farmers in the West are much more, against protection than their fellow-farmers of Australia.

Queen Victoria's Doll—
When Queen Victoria was a little girl she dearly loved dolls. She had 123 in all—dancing girls, lords and ladies, babies and maids. Each one dressed in garments that fitted him or her place in life. Victoria made the garments of 22 of these dolls herself very often. Such fine stitches she took too. Each pocket handkerchief, a half-inch square, she embroidered with initials, and drew the threads in the borders; silk and satin robes with long, graceful trains; caps and bonnets in the fashion of the day. Most wonderful of all was the way she finished off the tiny pockets of the dolls'—all still preserved. Lie, miss, I mean, where you may see them where you go to London.

RATES OF WAGES

Stratford, Ontario, and English Manufacturing Centre Compared

In April, 1914, before the war was upon us, and the high cost of living claimed our attention, Mr. H. B. Morphy, the member for North Perth, in which the city of Stratford is located, made a speech in the course of the budget debate, in which he gave some interesting figures bearing on the average wages in the trades throughout England and in his native city.

Dealing with this subject, Mr. Morphy said: "The first point that I am going to touch upon is what is known as the high cost of living, and in connection with that I desire to compare the cost of living of the Canadian workmen with the cost of living of the British workmen, the cost of living under what is known as a protective tariff in Canada as compared

"I have taken the trouble to secure a few more facts in relation to the subject just mentioned. I have taken the rates of wage of various trades common in the city of Stratford, in the county of North Perth, which I have the honor to represent, and the rates of wages in the same trades in the city of Toronto or rather throughout England, using average wages. The figures in both cases I have had prepared for me by the Department of Labor of this Government, and I accept them as accurate. So far as the Canadian figures are concerned, I am sure they are under rather than over-stated. Let us see in what position the workmen in cheap-food England stand in regard to what pay he gets compared with the same kind of man in a city of Canada under a pro-labor tariff miller."

A FAKE IN FLY PAPER

One of the most harassed importers in the sale of goods over performed on unsuspecting customers have been brought to our attention by a letter from a German retailer who says an ordinary fire proof safe he bought with a little cardboard box wrapped round with an attractive and multi-colored Made-in-Canada label had become loose and the label had come loose, and underneath he read the very different slogan "Made in Germany." Without the label no one would have known that it was not a German-made article, and one could not get away from the fact that the Made-in-Canada label was deliberately pasted on to cover up the label of the man who made it. The retailer informs us that the shops he goes on the boxes when he purchased them and that since he has discovered this important fact he has decided to stop more. The retailer must come along with the name of the people from whom he purchased so that the fraud may be traced to its source and the
